

American Association of Directors of Psychiatric Residency Training

Biosketch

Robert Boland, MD

AADPRT Position: Past President

Robert Boland, MD is Vice Chair of Education and the Director of the Brigham and Women's/Harvard Medical School Psychiatry Residency and Co-Director of the Harvard Longwood Psychiatry Residency Training Program. Dr. Boland joined the Harvard Longwood Psychiatry Residency Training Program in 2014, after many of on the faculty of Brown University. Dr. Boland graduated from Georgetown University and Georgetown School of Medicine, completed a residency at the Institute of Living in Hartford and a fellowship in Psychosomatic Medicine at Georgetown/Fairfax Hospital. Dr. Boland has more than 70 scientific publications and is currently on the editorial board for the journals most related to his interests (psychiatry education and the interface of medicine and psychiatry), including Academic Psychiatry, Psychosomatics, FOCUS (the APA's journal of continuing education) and Psychiatric Times and is Assistant Editor for the American College of Psychiatry's Psychiatry Residents in Training Examination (PRITE). He has had leadership roles in a number of organizations, including past President for the Association for Academic Psychiatry and the American Association of Directors of Residency Training, and he is the Chair for the Psychiatry Residency Review Committee for the Accreditation Council for Graduate Medical Education and is President of the Academy of Psychosomatic Medicine. In addition, he has served on various NIH study sections (grant review committees) for the last decade, and has chaired a number of special emphasis panels for NIH.

